

Centering Girls & Women

VOICE Resources in the COVID-19 Crisis

The COVID-19 pandemic is intensifying the violence that girls and women already face—and creating new risks. It is critical that aid agencies look to girls and women themselves to guide global and local responses to violence during the health crisis. VOICE is offering resources and support directly to girl- and women-led organizations, and is working with them to advocate with aid agencies for a more effective humanitarian and crisis response.

To connect with VOICE for the resources and support described below, email: info@voiceamplified.org